6. What is your strongest programming language and can you tell me about a project you have worked on using that language?

Java is the programming language I have been using a lot recently. Among others, I did a lot of Java programming when working on my internship project at IBM. The goal of the project is to provide a framework to support enterprise stakeholders' collaboration on the ontology of decision space. I implemented the idea by building a Web 2.0 based application with backend developed in Java using J2EE and frontend in Javascript/Ajax.
